Military training systems commands collaborate to develop ‘cutting-edge’ solutions

The leaders of each of the Orlando-based military modeling and simulation centers recently met to reaffirm their commitment to working together by signing an updated Team Orlando charter during the annual Training and Simulation Industry Symposium (TSIS) on Wednesday, June 14.

The senior officers from each of the four military services represented within the Central Florida Research Park serve as the Team Orlando Executive Board of Directors. They work together as a collaborative inter-service military body with a primary mission of supporting the Department of Defense (DOD).
