

Supporting our clients' charitable giving

Much of our nation's electronic waste (e-waste) can be reused, refurbished, or demanufactured for parts in order to extend its usable life. Businesses that recycle their e-waste through Southeastern Data earn revenue from this process and can choose to designate those funds to the charitable organizations and causes of their choice.

Unlike most direct donations of used electronics to charities, our unique program ensures that our clients' e-waste is properly and securely managed. Everyone wins: our clients, who are able to legally dispose of their e-waste while protecting themselves and the environment, and worthy organizations and causes, who have been hit hard by a challenging economy. Like the idea, but don't have a charity in mind? Ask us for a recommendation!

Easy as 1-2-3

Here's how the program works:

1. After you drop off or call us to collect your e-waste, Southeastern Data removes all client tags and markets, securely wipes any remaining data from electronics, and routes the materials to resale or scrap channels, depending on market assessment.
2. You can follow the sales process through our online sales system, which allows you to log in through any web browser and provides real-time status of your materials. Our sales process exposes our clients' material to Southeastern Data's broad buying audience—one that is generally much larger than if our clients managed the sales on their own. This translates into more revenue with fewer resources required from our clients!
3. When the inventory is sold, checks are sent at the beginning of each month to the designated charitable organization or cause on your behalf, and you are emailed the supporting payout report.
